About Bharatpur

Bharatpur District is a district of Rajasthan state in western India. Bharatpur District is a part of National Capital Region (NCR). Bharatpur District is famous for Keoladeo National Park, a major wintering area for migratory birds. Apart from the park, Bharatpur also has a few historic vestiges. Bharatpur hosts the boisterous and colourful Brij Festival just prior to Holi celebrations. Bharatpur is also known as "Lohagarh". There is a forest called 'Ghana' where more than 250 species of migratory birds are available during the monsoon and winter season. The sanctuary is not only famous in India but it has its significance world wide.
